COFFEEWORKS

In our quest of finding “good coffee” we discovered the world of “specialty coffee.”

And since then we’ve been trying to bring the finest of Indian specialty coffees to your table, while honing the craft of brewing coffee ourselves.

Specialty coffee is any coffee that has achieved a score of 80 or higher out of 100 on a standardised score sheet by a panel of expert coffee tasters known as q graders. Only around 10% of all coffee produced reaches specialty grade.

Alongside, we’ve curated a list our bestsellers which have been a part of our menu since 2019.

We are passionate about creating a safe community space where you can be experimental with coffee and conversations!

manual brew

aeropress

Aeropress is a piston-style brewer that forces coffee through a thin paper filter directly into a cup. It brews just a single serving of coffee at a time, but its size and durability make it a favorite device among travelers and campers. Aeropress coffee has a clean taste with clearly defined flavor notes thanks to the paper filter that stops any oil and sediment from getting in the cup.

Hot / Iced 170

v-60 pour over

It is "V" shaped with angles of 60 degrees. The internal sides also have interior ridges which help with air flow during the brewing method. The pour-over method allows you to control the temperature of the water, the speed at which it goes into the grounds, the amount of time it brews and how much it makes - resulting in a clean cup, lighter bodied coffee.

Hot / Iced 170

french press

French Press is comprised of a tall carafe and a metal mesh filter attached to a long stem. Coffee grounds are steeped in hot water for several minutes and then pressed to the bottom of the carafe by the metal mesh filter. The result is a heavy-hitting cup of coffee with robust taste and mouthfeel.
